Honors Class Plans Interfaith Symposium
NorthWest Arkansas Community College Will Host Event on Nov. 12

BENTONVILLE, Ark. (November 6, 2012) – NorthWest Arkansas Community College will host an Interfaith Symposium at 7 p.m. Nov. 12 in room 108 of the Student Center.

The symposium is being conducted as part of a Service Learning Project sponsored by NWACC’s Honors World Civilization to 1500 class. The event will be part of the college’s International Education Week.

Each of the experts in Buddhism, Islam, Judaism, Sikhism and Wicca will describe their main beliefs/tenets, their life ways, and the misconceptions often believed about their community. The symposium is open to the public, and there is no admission charge. Organizers have asked that those attending consider bringing canned goods to donate to the Northwest Arkansas Food Bank.
